HOW TO TAKE A TRENCH.

Censor's Comments on Amusing Letter.

A Corporal in France, writing to his brother, who is training in England says: "We have been working for about a week, so we are going back to the trenches for a rest. We are quite ready to meet the Germans again; we have scrubbed our trenching tool handles and polished our bayonet scabbards, cleaned our equipment, scrubbed our boots, and all of us have our cap badges in our caps. We have been inspected by all the generals in the Army, and Sir John French is bringing some more to inspect us on Monday. We are giving our trenching tool handles an extra scrub for this."

You'll be surprised when you get out here, but I don't think you will be wanted. We shall most likely finish the job this next week. We can present arms by numbers well enough now to take a really serious part in the fighting. There is going to be some keen work done next week; only yesterday one of our bomb throwers put three of our men in an excess of zeal. That's only practicing. Heaven knows what will happen when he really gets to work. You don't know how to take a trench, do you? Quite simple. Somebody goes in front and cuts the barbed wire, then the bomb throwers throw a lot of bombs into the trench, and then the rest advance and take the trench. It's best to select an unoccupied trench for this purpose. It is Sunday to-morrow, and we do not have pack drill, so I shall do a bit of washing. I read the other day, "Tommy can march better with his pack on than without." Our C. O. must have read this also. It will be a bad day for the writer of same, when I drop across him. It will be five rounds rapid. By the way, for your own good, practice rapid loading and firing. I am going on writing and I don't know whether it is one of the worst letters any officers censor the letters. (We'd like some more like this.—Censor) One way of getting our own back: They give us plenty of parade; we write a lot of letters to find them something to do. (Thanks!) We also do "parade"—Censor. They must get plenty of fun out of it, judging by a few I've helped to write. I'm the dictionary for my section.

THE RAILWAY DISASTER.

Arrest of Signalman.

James Tinsley, the signalman who gave evidence at the Board of Trade inquiry into the troop train disaster at Greta, was brought before Sheriff Simpson on Saturday afternoon (7th) at Dumfries and judicially examined. Tinsley was in a state bordering on collapse, and wept bitterly. He was later removed in a motor ambulance, pending further inquiry. A skull, believed to be that of a woman, has been found among the wreckage during the operations of lifting the wrecked engine. No light can be thrown on the question of identification. A woman's arm with a gold bangle round the wrist was seen under one of the carriages while the train was off from Greta on Saturday for Edinburgh, conveying sixty injured soldiers. Twelve of the patients were carried on stretchers, but the remainder were able to walk. As the train left the soldiers cheered the local doctors and nurses on the platform. There are about eighty serious cases still remaining under treatment. Mr. Campbell Smith, secretary to the Lothians Association, has received the following cablegram from Lieutenant Colonel Leslie, commanding the 7th Battalion Royal Scots, Leith, who suffered in the disaster: "Sending you 2450, subscribe 2 by office, non-commissioned officers, and men who escaped, in the accident for the immediate benefit of their comrades' relatives and dependents who suffered."

A Natural
Remedy
Time was when disease was thought to be due to the direct influence of evil spirits, and exorcism
and magic were invoked to cast it out.
Science has taught us wisdom. The evil spirits exist still. We call them "Disease Germs," and they also must be cast out. Once lodged in the stomach or intestines, fever with its hallucinations, or biliousness with its aches and pains, is the result.

FRUIT SALT
is the approved remedy for driving out disease germs. Its action is quick and thorough. It clears the intestines, rouses the torpid liver to new life, stimulates the mucous membrane to a healthy action, and cleanses and invigorates the whole digestive tract.
It may be safely taken at any time by young or old.
It is very effective in the early stage of Diarrhea
by removing the irritating cause.
Be prepared for emergencies by always keeping a bottle in the house.
Prepared only by

SCOTTISH LETTER.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

EDINBURGH, May 27.

RAILWAY DISASTER TO ROYAL SCOTS.

The railway disaster near Grimsby Green came as a stunning blow upon Scotland.
One of the three trains involved carried half a battalion of the 7th Royal Scots Territorials, nearly 500 men, and when the roll was called afterwards only some 60 answered to their names. The dead numbered 165, and all of them with three exceptions, were soldiers. Three officers of the Royal Scots lost their lives, and three officers of the 9th Argyll and Sutherland, the latter were on short leave from the front. The headquarters of the 7th Royal Scots is in Leith, and most of the men came from that town or from the neighbouring Newhaven or Musselburgh. It had been enrolled since the beginning of the war; it was in grand trim and training; and was on its way from the "Type of Falcirk to Liverpool bound for the Dardanelles."

Grimsby Green lies in what is known as the Debatable Land between Scotland and England; but even the blood-stained story of the Borders cannot show anything to parallel the tragedy of last Saturday morning—the brightest May morning, by the irony of fate, of the present year. We have become insured to the toll which war leaves upon the young manhood of the nation. A casualty list has lost something of the poignant appeal to the imagination and sympathy which it has in the early weeks of last autumn. But while we have read of battalions destroyed by machine-gun fire, without the chance of striking a blow at the enemy; of great ships suddenly sinking to the seabed, and its results are all the sadder when one reflects that the victims, some of whom were killed with merciless swiftness, while others died slowly and agonisingly or were maimed for life, were in the prime of youth and eager for the service for which they had just fitted themselves.

The disaster was the greatest that has ever occurred on British railways. Indeed it was a disaster piled on a disaster. First the troop train containing the Royal Scots crashed into a local train which was being hunted across its track. Then an express train from London, going at full speed halted on the top of the other two. And lastly there was the terrible horror of an outbreak of fire against which it was impossible to make headway. But perhaps the worst tragedy of all was that when the worst injured, had their limbs heavily amputated as the only means of rescuing them from the swiftly approaching flames.

The behaviour of the Royal Scots under the ordeal is described as magnificent.
There arose at once smoke and flame from the wreckage; but the shaken survivors took to the situation in an instant, and says an Englishman who was present,
"I saw them calmly, with a desperate energy, many of them bruised and bleeding, and some staggering, the Scots fell to the work of saving their fellows. They were fully engaged in the work of rescue when there ripped in the London express, double engine and running late. In this second disaster also many of the Royal Scots perished. Another English observer says,
"when the second shock was over, all that was left of the Territorials never hesitated
a moment, but dove into the work again that silent, savage way of the Scots." It is heartbreaking, eyes still, another who was at Grimsby, "here were 500 lucky young men who had been in training for months; all of them were as bronzed as berries; they attained the threshold of their ambition and were on the way to the fighting line, a few hours earlier they had received the best wishes of their friends;
and then, completing the first hundred miles of their journey from home to the East, this catastrophe overtook them."

The behaviour of the injured was very remarkable. The thought, it was to judge from the steady remarks of one Territorial to have been uppermost in their minds that they were hurt and not feeling the enemy.
This man, on being removed in a hopeless condition, lay so motionless on a stretcher that his bearers thought he was already dead. But "the war," he groaned, "we had a sporting chance there, haven't we?" A second complained, and it was his daily complaint, that he "had a touch for it," and died shortly afterwards. More remarkable even was the exclamation of a man who had just had his foot amputated, and whose face,

according to a derrygman stretcher-bearer, was "like a butcher's shop counter." He started, all round with the exuberant querry, "Are we down-hearted?" Forced with the prospect of being turned alive, it was no wonder that one or two sought relief in a swifter and more merciful end.
There was one imprisoned soldier who shouted, through an aperture, "For Heaven's sake, shoot me, Jack!"

MUNITIONS FACTORY FOR DUNDEE.

The War Office and Treasury authorities have approved of a scheme drawn up by the local engineers and citizens of Dundee for the establishment of a munitions factory in the city. A start will be made by taking over the premises in Dundee harbour
formerly occupied by Gourlay Brothers, Ltd., shipbuilders and other factories, it is hoped will be established as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made. The machinery required will be rapidly collected, and in about a month or six weeks 500 men will be employed. Dundee will be the first city in Scotland to set up a munition works factory, and second only to Leeds
in the whole country.

MEMORIALS TO CHINA.

On Foreign Missions day in the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, among the missionaries presented were Dr. Andrew Graham, from Ichang, with fifteen years' service, and Miss Constance Craig and Miss Margaret Pirie, going to China.
In the General Assembly of the United Free Church, formerly of Blackfriars, the presented included Miss Emma Macdonald, to Moukden, and Dr. Jean M. McMillan,
M.A., to Manchuria.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S SCOTTISH BLOOD.

In a letter to a correspondent in Scotland, a prominent citizen of New York
says,—"I hope you and our British friends will not cultivate a spirit of intolerance towards our President, whom your papers invariably call Mr. Wilson instead of President Wilson. Remember that he has Scottish blood in him, and although he does not say so, I have no doubt he will welcome an Allied victory as much as any one of us. He has a difficult position."

OUR SOLDIERS IN FLANDERS.

By those who heard it, the account given by Dr. Wallace Williamson to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland of his visit to the Flanders soldiers in France was a revelation. But also he is a statesman, and his words carry weight at all times,
and an ex-Moderator of the Auld Kirk; and his is the recognised orator of the Assembly.
No other man in the venerable court can lead you up to the delicate point when your throat is rattled by too long a collar, when you are beginning to wish so many eyes were not upon you, and then relieving with some happy anecdote—
quite in the traditional fashion of the Scots —everything upon the heart and the moment. But also he is a statesman,

ZEPPELIN RAID.

GRAPHIC STORIES AT THE INQUEST.

Killed At Praya.

Inquests were held on June 3rd on the previous three of the victims of the Zeppelin raid on Monday night. At the outset the coroner pointed out that the cases involved the deaths of innocent persons, burned to death by the explosion of bombs dropped from enemy aircraft.

Evidence in the first two cases showed that a man and his wife were killed, and in the third case a little girl, aged 3 years, was burnt in her bed.

Verdicts were returned to the effect that the deaths were caused by suffocation due to bombs, and that the deceased had been murdered by some agent of the hostile forces.

The first inquest was as to the cause of death of two victims of the raid, whose names were:
Henry Thomas Good, aged 49;
Caroline Good, his wife, aged 46.

The coroner said the jury were inquiring into the deaths of two innocent persons who were apparently burnt to death by the explosion of a bomb dropped by a Zeppelin, by the orders of the German Army, he supposed.

"It is not desirable," he added, "to make much commotion about this matter. We do not want alarm to spread around the Metropolis, which has, up to the present, taken this act very quietly and coolly, although we all stand in danger."

"It does not seem desirable to go into these matters very deeply," the coroner further remarked, "for the simple reason that it can do no possible good. In a case of this sort, where it is impossible to get hold of the culprits, there is no good purpose to be served by it. Beyond that the Government will not allow numerous details to be published in the Press. If we are able to record the circumstances of the deaths we shall be doing all that is desirable in the case."

The first witness was Henry Thomas Good, son of the deceased, who stated that he was a laboratory hand, and resided near his parents. He last saw his father alive at 9.30 on Monday night. About eleven p.m. I was in bed when I heard a bomb. I got up and went out. I saw flames coming from the direction of my parents' house. I found my parents' house ablaze, but I was told they were out. I went into the garden of the empty house next door, and then I went to my grandparents' house, taking it for granted that my parents were safe. I was told afterwards that my parents were in the house, and that they could not get at them owing to the great heat. I subsequently heard that they were found dead in the bed-room.

KNEELING AT BEDSIDE.
A doctor, who was called to the scene, stated that he found both the deceased in a back room on the first floor. Both were kneeling beside the bed, and were naked. All the man's hair had been burnt off. The room was in ruins. Apart from a small of burning there was no smell of any chemical. The woman had a large piece of hair in her right hand.

The coroner: Perhaps she had snatched it from her own hair in pain?—Yes.

Witness added that the man's arm was around the woman's waist. They died very suddenly. They had not been dead long. Their bodies were not injured by the bombs.

"Police-constable Jones stated that at 11.10 on Monday night he heard a bang, and saw deceased's house burst into flames. "I then saw a bomb drop near, and it set fire to the wooden paving. I at once gave the fire alarm."

Police-constable Burnett stated: "At 11.5 I saw a bomb fall upon deceased's house. I heard the sound of machinery in the air, and suddenly the house burst into flames. A woman appeared at the top room window, but was unable to get out. I sent for a ladder, but owing to the fierce heat I was unable to reach her. With the assistance of other persons I held a blanket, and asked her to jump. She did so, and was slightly injured in the fall. I was then informed that all the inhabitants were out of the house."

"About midnight I was informed that two bodies had been found in the back room on the first floor. I climbed a ladder at the back of the premises, and saw deceased, kneeling by the bed. Both were naked. Evidently the man had had some clothes on, for there was a band of a guernsey on his right arm, which was around the woman's waist."

BOMBS IN COURT.
The coroner, jury, and everyone else in the court leaned forward eagerly when, stooping down, the constable picked up two incendiary bombs found in the basement. One, he explained, had fallen through the

LITTLE GIRL KILLED.

A Third Inquest.

The inquest on Elsie Lilian Leggett, aged 3 years, another victim of the raid, was held in the afternoon.

The coroner remarked upon the unfortunate circumstances of the death, which, he said, appeared to have been due to the explosion of a bomb dropped from the sky, evidently by an enemy. It was not considered desirable to go into details at any length for several reasons. First of all because of the impossibility of charging anyone with the offence, or at least of convicting anyone, and also because it was not desirable to raise any public alarm, that could be avoided.

Elizabeth Louise Leggett, mother of the deceased, stated that her husband was Samuel George Leggett, a carman, and they occupied two rooms on the first floor of a house. They had five children.

About eleven o'clock on Monday night, whilst she was in bed in the front room, her husband, who was reading in the same room, said a bomb had fallen, and he rushed to the back bed-room, where the children were asleep, in order to get them out. As he opened the door a bomb crashed through the children's bed.

"My husband got four of the children out," added witness with emotion, "but the other was left. He thought he had got them all out. They were all very badly burned," she said, tearfully. "I went straight from my bed-room into the street and screamed for help, and as I went I saw flames in the back bed-room."

The coroner: Is your husband here?—No, sir; he is in hospital. He was burned, too.

A police officer informed the coroner that the husband and all the children were in hospital suffering from burns.

FIRE ALL ROUND.
A sub-officer of the Fire Brigade said he was called to the house from another fire in the neighbourhood. He got the fire out, and was searching the debris on the bed when he was called away to another fire.

"There were fires all round that night," he explained. Further answering the coroner, he said he did not find the deceased girl.

A constable stated that he went to the house. At 12.30 the fire again broke out, and he managed to subdue it. Afterwards he searched the room, and found a bomb in the left-hand corner by the side of the gas-stove.

The officer produced the bomb, which was in a fragile condition, due, no doubt, to the action of the fire on the metal work.

Afterwards (witness continued) he noticed something which appeared to him to be charcoal. He searched some dirt away, and found a child's leg. The bomb had fallen through the roof, and stopped on the floor of the bed-room.

A doctor said he had examined the body, which was terribly burned. Death, in his opinion, was due to suffocation.

Lieutenant Talbot Cobbett, a Bachelor of Science, of the 10th County of London Regiment, was called. "I have seen thirty-three of these bombs of every kind," he was remarking, when the coroner pulled him up, stating, "I am afraid we must confine ourselves to this particular bomb."

FOREIGN BOMB.
Witness said he had seen the bomb produced, and there was no doubt it fell from an aircraft.

The coroner: It is not of English manufacture?

Witness: I believe a label was found showing that it was manufactured by a famous German firm noted for the manufacture of incendiary bombs.

The coroner: It is intended to set fire to things?—Yes, sir.

The coroner: It does not explode?—No; it is not explosive. The construction of the bomb itself shows that it is not explosive. It is bound around with low saturated with some inflammable liquid.

The coroner: Do you think the machine was ignited before it dropped?—There are several ways of lighting it. It can be lit before it is dropped. It can ignite itself with certain liquids by the friction of the atmosphere or by friction acting upon metal. The internal vessel of inflammable liquid is released on concussion.

The coroner: The whole affair is somewhat fragile. This is a particularly bad example.

Witness added that the bomb was all crumpled up by the fire. It had been filled with metal filings so as to give it impetus.

In answer to a jurymen, Lieutenant Cobbett remarked that such bombs gathered great impetus when they were dropped—something like 800 ft. a second. The other bombs which he had seen were more solid, and contained metal filings, and to give them extra weight. The tow was wired on, and they were very well put together.

ENEMY'S MASSACRE.
At the close of his evidence Lieutenant Cobbett gave a useful piece of information. These incendiary bombs, he said, could be easily picked up with the aid of a pair of tongs, or a stick or umbrella, and thrown out of the window of any room.

The coroner, in summing up, said there seemed no doubt that the mas-

EAGER FOR THE FIGHT.

FEELING IN THE NEW ARMY.

The following extracts from service papers will show the feelings animating the new battalions and companies at home. They all seem pretty eager to get to the front.

10th Battalion, R. W. Kents B. Company.—Of late there has been so much to do that there is really very little to say. Perhaps the main thing that emerges out of a very busy life is that our men are trained to a point beyond which they easily "slide." We are just a little jumpy at the delay in going out—the many probable dates have all been "moved on."

Every man of us is glad that we are at the end of training—night operations have been numerous, and sometimes rather long; we are becoming accustomed to sudden moves; and our digestion has ceased to be offended at the reception of two meals rolled into one.

These notes, by a curious "enslaved" man always been asked for on the edge of a move. We are not on the move, nor in instant expectation of it, just at the time of writing, but we hope very much that the coincidence, hitherto un- happy, and awkward, will again occur, and we shall be well away—not to come back till we have marched through the streets of Berlin, singing: "Here we are! Here we are! Here we are again!"

Our congratulations to Sergeant Judge, who has been promoted W.O. Class 2, and appointed C.S.M., and to Sergeant Sparling, who has been appointed Pioneer Sergeant. Good luck to them both!

Tch Batt. R. W. Kents B. Company.—How do the little busy "B's" passing word, all things considered, though nowadays there is as little to tell of single companies as there is much of the Battalion as a whole—and well that it is so.

At all events we have shaken the dust of Purfleet from our feet at last. Two short weeks ago by the clock—but it is ages in reality since the Battalion slid smoothly into the Range, to make that triumphal progress into Colchester amid the snorting of locomotives, the trumpeting of mules and the fluttering of innumerable handkerchiefs from all the back gardens of Barking.

A week in the Campanian luxury of the Goojerat Barracks, a week in the Spartan simplicity of the Reed Hall Butments—et non vixit on the brink of our Suffolk pilgrimage—may all gods and unpires be propitious. One's only regret is that we did not come before; certainly no previous fortnight of ours has been so fraught with change. New rifles, new bayonets for old, the stimulus of Colchester for the stagnation of Purfleet—and there are other differences as well. Colchester decided the first day that the Battalion was not without a certain opinion of itself; but there is a new self-realisation, a new "go" about things, new impulses and new energy; as a fighting whole the Battalion seems to have come to its own.

Things have moved fast; they look like moving faster. Salisbury and concentration are in sight—and after? Flanders, Troy, or Timbuctoo, what matter, so it be soon?

Again "D. Coy." says: "Our Training has been very severe. We are now waiting anxiously for the move across the ditch when it is hoped and anticipated that the doughty deeds of the First may be emulated."

RANGE STORY.
Here is a good range story. A soldier required ten points in his practice to qualify for First Class Provisionary Pay. Before firing his first round, he remarked to his friends behind:—

"Gentlemen, this is a contest between Lord Haldane and myself."

In the practice his score was nine. Getting up, he remarked:—"Lord Haldane wins—on points."

Numbers of gently-bred girls in the early weeks of the war, armed with an ambulance class certificate but with no experience, set out to "nurse" the wounded. They soon found their level, and all found to them—turned their hands over to the house and scullery-maid tasks that are the lot of the probationer in her first months, leaving the trained and experienced professional nurses free for the important duties on the proper performance of which life or death depends.

One of this unfortunate child had been done by the enemies of this country, by a bomb dropped from a hostile aircraft. He did not think it was necessary or desirable to add very much, because they could not possibly bring anyone to justice for this act. No doubt it was an act of murder, but he did not think there was any advantage in putting in the verdict anything more than that the child was done to death by burns and suffocation caused by an incendiary bomb dropped from an aircraft. If the jury insisted on it, they could say that some person unknown was guilty of willful murder, but he did not think that that would have any particular effect.

The jury returned a verdict that death was due to suffocation and burns by a fire set up by an incendiary bomb dropped from an hostile aircraft.

THE PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

LORD MERSEY'S "JUDGMENT" REGARDING THE LOSS OF THE FALABA.

THE RUSSIANS AGAIN ADOPT THE OFFENSIVE.

AUSTRIAN TROOPS HEAVILY DEFEATED.

SEVERE FIGHTING ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

THE LOSS OF THE "FALABA."

LORD MERSEY'S JUDGMENT.

LONDON, July 8.

Lord Mersey, giving judgment in the enquiry into the loss of the "Falaba," said that the life-saving measures were promptly carried out and proper discipline was maintained. The submarine did not attempt to save any lives. There was evidence that her crew laughed and jeered while men and women were drowning. Lord Mersey said he was satisfied that the witnesses describing the boats on the "Falaba" as rotten were mistaken, and that any damage that was done to them in the launching was not owing to any neglect on the part of officers or crew.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

THE FIGHTING NEAR ARRAS AND SOUCHEZ.

LONDON, July 7.

The Germans, says a telegram from Paris, continue their attempts to storm Souchez station, but they are quite unsuccessful. The enemy suffered terribly on the heights of the Mense, being again caught in a curtain of fire by French artillery.

To-day's communiqué reports that the Germans have developed yet another offensive. It started last night by an extremely violent bombardment south-eastward of St. Mihiel and they then attacked from the hill commanding the right bank of the Meuse to the southward of Ailly in the Forest of Apremont. The enemy penetrated our first line only at one point of a front of 600 metres. Everywhere else he was repulsed with heavy losses.

We defeated immediately a fresh German attack east of Bois-le-Prete, which was preceded by a deluge of liquid fire.

HEAVY ENEMY LOSSES.

LONDON, July 9, 1 a.m.

Last night's Paris communiqué says:—After a violent combat, lasting most of the morning, the infantry action in the Forest of Apremont ceased. The enemy lost heavily and made no fresh progress. We re-captured 200 metres of trenches in the western part of Bois-le-Prete by grenade fighting.

SIGNIFICANT GERMAN MOVEMENTS IN BELGIUM.

LONDON, July 9.

Correspondents at Amsterdam affirm that undoubtedly the Germans are sending fresh artillery as well as troops westward through Belgium, but the opinion is expressed that the Germans are endeavouring to mystify the Allies regarding the movements and the point of attack.

THE FRENCH CASUALTIES.

ENORMOUS TOTALS.

LONDON, July 8.

Figures published by the French Relief Committee shows the French casualties to May 31st to have been as follows:—

Killed	400,000
Wounded	700,000
Missing	300,000

RUSSIANS AGAIN TAKE THE OFFENSIVE.

Austrians Repeatedly Attacked.

LONDON, July 8.

An Austrian communiqué says the Russians, reinforced, have taken the offensive north of Krasnik against the Archduke Joseph's army which they repeatedly attacked. The battle has become fiercer owing to the participation of strong Russian reserves.

A Russian communiqué mentions the continuance of desperate fighting on the 6th inst., between the rivers Vistula and Vepre, in the direction of Lublin. It says that along the roads leading to Krasnik where the enemy's dispositions form a salient, the Russians on the 6th inst., continued a successful counter-attack which began on the 5th inst., forcing the enemy to pass to the defensive and capturing 2,000 prisoners and several Maxim's.

The enemy on the evening of the 5th attacked at many points on the Lemberg roads, between the towns of Kamionka and Gliniany, but heavy losses compelled him to suspend the movement.

ADDITIONS TO DUTCH FLEET.

LONDON, July 8.

The Government, says a telegram from The Hague, in replying to the report of the Chamber on the Bill enlarging the Fleet, say that it is impossible to abandon the construction of two cruisers, and adds that the present system of defence of the Dutch Indies, especially Java, is insufficient.

LORD HALDANE REBUKED.

Unauthorized Disclosures.

LONDON, July 8.

Mr. Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, has issued a statement in which he says: "Lord Haldane's version of what occurred months ago at a meeting of the Arms Committee of the Cabinet is incomplete and in some material respects inaccurate. The very fact of this conflict of memory shows the unwisdom of these partial and unauthorized disclosures of decisions of highly confidential committees of the Cabinet."

BY TELEGRAPH.

THE DARDANELLES OPERATIONS. FURTHER DESPATCHES FROM GENERAL HAMILTON.

LONDON, July 7.

General Sir Ian Hamilton to-night reports that on the 5th inst. the Turks started what proved to be the most violent bombardment we have yet experienced. At least 5,000 heavy shells were fired as a preliminary to a general attack in the southern theatre. The Allies fought magnificently and the enemy's attack proved a complete failure.

Our losses were negligible. No impression was made on our line but the enemy added to his recent very heavy losses.

ATTACKERS WIPED OUT BY RIFLE AND MACHINE GUN FIRE.

LONDON, July 8.

General Sir Ian Hamilton to-night adds that the Turks used all their previous guns, and some new ones. A Turkish battleship in the Straits dropped some twenty 11.2 shells. The Turks had maintained a musketry fire along the whole line throughout the night, but they did not leave the trench. Then came their fierce artillery preparation.

The principal effort of the Turkish infantry was aimed at a junction of the naval Division and the French. Some fifty Turks gained a footing in a trench where, however, the naval men hung on. Then British supports immediately counter-attacked and drove out the enemy.

Another attack on the right of the 20th Division was repulsed, the attackers being practically wiped out by rifle and machine-gun fire. Then the Turks on our left rushed in a mullah and attempted several attacks, but none were able to get home owing to the steadiness of our troops and effective artillery support. The bombardment died down at noon, though it was resumed at intervals.

It seems plain from the disjointed nature of the attacks that the enemy is finding it difficult to drive the infantry forward in face of our fire.

FRENCH ACCOUNT OF THE ACTION.

A Paris communiqué says:—The Turks at the Dardanelles on the 5th inst. made a general attack. It was the most important attack made since the beginning of May, when they attempted to throw us into the sea.

From 4 o'clock in the morning there was a most intense bombardment of our first lines and also of the zone of the Franco-British rear. Following upon this the enemy infantry made several attacks. None, however, even reached our trenches. Most of the enemy were decimated by artillery or mowed by rifle and machine-gun fire, and were left lying on the field.

Throughout the action the enemy's batteries on the Asiatic coast fired ceaselessly, as also did a Turkish battleship, cruising between Maldoz and Chanak.

Enemy aeroplanes several times bombarded our lines. Sixteen Allied aeroplanes at the close of the day flew over a Turkish aerodrome at Chirak and threw bombs, a huge bomb striking the principal shed.

Officers To Shoot All Who Try To Escape.

LONDON, July 8.

The American Association of Commerce at Berlin reports that the price of raw cotton at Bremen has risen 30 cents a pound in consequence of the British blockade.

GENERAL VON LINGENSEN'S PROGRESS.

LONDON, July 6.

A German communiqué, says an Amsterdam wire, asserts that General von Linsingen has reached Zlotalpa River.

ANOTHER NAVAL BATTLE?

LONDON, July 8.

Renewed firing was heard from the sea east of Gotthard throughout the forenoon of the 7th inst., says a Copenhagen telegram.

BRITISH SEAPLANE ACTIVE.

LONDON, July 8.

Reuter's correspondent at Athens telegraphs that a British seaplane has bombed Smyrna and Aivali.

SERIOUS ALLEGATIONS IN ARSON CASE.

An application for bail for the five men charged with arson, in connection with the Queen's Road East fire on Tuesday morning, was made to Mr. Lindell at the Magistrate's Court this morning by Mr. Looker, of Messrs. Duncan, Looker, Dodson, and Harrison, who is appearing for the defence. Inspector Gordon said he was instructed by the Captain Superintendent of Police to oppose bail.

In answer to his Worship's question as to whether he could produce any evidence, Inspector Gordon said that he could get the Government Analyst to go into the box and prove that certain exhibits which were handed to him on the morning of the fire were saturated with kerosene. There would also be the evidence of himself and another police officer that kerosene was seen flowing out of the premises after the outbreak.

"THE LAW'S DELAY"

A LITTLE "BREEZE" IN THE SUMMARY COURT.

"My friend seems to regard this as a huge joke. I don't. I think it is trifling with the Court," said Mr. Faithful to Mr. Justice Hazeland this morning in the Summary Court.

Mr. Faithful for a plaintiff contractor, was criticising the action of Mr. Mason for the defence. Three weeks ago to-day, he said, Mr. Mason was ordered to give particulars of his counter-claim and he never gave these particulars until quite late on Thursday in last week. He (Mr. Faithful) then said, when the case came on for trial that it was impossible for him to go on in consequence.

Mr. Mason: The case has not yet come on for trial.

His Lordship: Please don't interrupt, Mr. Mason.

"But I must correct my friend's errors of memory," rejoined Mr. Mason.

Mr. Faithful: My memory is quite as good as yours, Mr. Mason.

His Lordship: Please do not converse in that manner. Sit down, Mr. Mason.

Mr. Faithful, continuing said, the case was fixed for hearing this afternoon. At a quarter past five last night—he happened to be at his office a little later than usual—Mr. Mason sent him amended particulars of the counter-claim. It was perfectly unreasonable to expect him to go on with the case to-day.

Mr. Mason said the only difference in the amended particulars was in regard to prices.

Mr. Faithful observed that the amended particulars reduced the counter claim from $200 to $300. It was only fair that he should have time to go into that.

His Lordship agreed and adjourned the hearing for a week, the question of costs being deferred.
